Introduction	Inflation and Unemployment in Contemporary Economies	1
PART I	THE BACKGROUND: MACROECONOMICS WITH COMPETITIVE MICROFOUNDATIONS	15
1.	The Classical Model of Employment and Inflation: Market-Clearing and the Quantity Theory of Money	17
1.1	The Classical Model	18
1.2	Summarizing the Classical Model using Aggregate Demand and Supply	26
1.3	Conclusions and Policy Implications	28
2.	Keynes's Model of Employment	29
2.1	Keynes's Model of Employment: IS/LM Analysis and Aggregate Demand and Supply	30
2.2	Keynes versus the Classics	47
2.3	Keynes's Model and Falling Money Wages	49
2.4	The Real Balance Effect: The Classical Rejoinder to Keynes	59
2.5	Interim Conclusions on Keynes's Model	63
	Appendix: Simple Mathematics and Geometry of IS/LM	65
3.	Inflation and Unemployment: Friedman's Model	69
3.1	The Keynesian/Phillips Model of Inflation and the Keynesian–Neoclassical Synthesis	69
3.2	Friedman's Model of Inflation	74
3.3	The Natural Rate of Unemployment	76
3.4	Money in Friedman's Model	85
3.5	Fiscal Policy in Friedman's Model	88
3.6	Macroeconomic Policy and the Permanent Income Hypothesis	90
3.7	Conclusions	91

4.	The New Classical Macroeconomics	94
4.1	Rational Expectations and the New Classical Propositions: An Introduction	96
4.2	Tools of the New Classical Macroeconomics	101
4.3	How Do We Assess the Rational Expectations Hypothesis?	105
5.	The Keynesian Counter-Attack: Fixed-Price Models	106
5.1	The Background to the Reinterpretation of Keynes's Theory of Employment: Walras's Law	107
5.2	Keynes's Model as the General Case: Clower's Dual-Decision Hypothesis	111
5.3	Leijonhufvud's Defence of Keynes	115
5.4	Keynesian and Classical Unemployment: Fixed-Price Quantity-Constrained Models	117
5.5	Conclusions	129
PART II IMPERFECT COMPETITION MACROECONOMICS IN THE CLOSED ECONOMY		133
6.	The Basic Imperfect Competition Model	135
6.1	Wage- and Price-Setting under Imperfect Competition: the Equilibrium Rate of Unemployment	137
6.2	Inflation in the Imperfect Competition Model	146
6.3	Comparing the Equilibrium Rate of Unemployment (NAIRU) with the Natural Rate of Unemployment	157
6.4	Employment in the Imperfect Competition Model	159
6.5	Summary	165
7.	Economic Policy and the Imperfect Competition Model	167
7.1	Policies to Shift the Equilibrium Rate of Unemployment: Supply-Side Fiscal Policy and Incomes Policy	168
7.2	The Effect of Policy on Actual Employment: the Crowding- out Debate	180
7.3	The Effect on Inflation and Employment of the Adoption of a Monetary Growth Rule	188
8.	Wage Bargaining and Policy Analysis: Some Key Issues	196
8.1	Expectations Hypotheses	196
8.2	Incomes Policy: Problems with Implementation	212
*8.3	Wage Bargaining and Productivity Growth	216

PART III	IMPERFECT COMPETITION MACROECONOMICS IN THE OPEN ECONOMY	221
9.	Extending IS/LM to the Open Economy	223
9.1	Goods Market Equilibrium	224
9.2	The LM curve and the Balance of Trade: Zero Capital Mobility	228
9.3	Implications of Capital Mobility for Macro Policy	233
9.4	Conclusions for the Role of Monetary and Fiscal Policy in the Short Run with Fixed Prices	236
10.	Competitiveness and External Balance	238
10.1	The Determinants of Exports and Imports: the Role of Competitiveness	238
10.2	The Marshall–Lerner Condition	241
10.3	Policy Analysis and the Salter–Swan Diagram	243
11.	The Imperfect Competition Model in the Open Economy	250
11.1	Price-Setting, Wage-Setting, the Real Cost of Imports, and International Competitiveness	254
11.2	Equilibrium Rates of Unemployment and the Sustainable Rate of Unemployment	256
11.3	Using Policy to Shift the Sustainable Rate of Unemployment	262
11.4	Inflation and Employment in the Fixed Exchange Rate Open Economy	267
*11.5	More Realistic Assumptions about Pricing and Competitiveness: Profit Squeeze	274
11.6	Summary and Conclusions	281
12.	The Exchange Rate as a Policy Instrument	285
12.1	Devaluation and Real Wage Resistance	286
12.2	The Effectiveness of Devaluation: A Summary of the Debate	292
12.3	Why Devalue?	295
12.4	Conclusions	301
13.	Floating Exchange Rates with Zero Capital Mobility	302
13.1	Why Float the Exchange Rate? Insulation from External Shocks	303
13.2	Reintroducing the Competing-Claims Equilibrium: the Reappearance of the Unique Equilibrium Rate of Unemployment	307
13.3	Summary and Policy Implications	315

14.	Floating Exchange Rates and Perfect Capital Mobility: Exchange Rate Expectations	318
14.1	Exchange Market Equilibrium	320
14.2	An Introduction to Policy Analysis: Fixed Prices, Fixed Wages, and Fixed Expected Exchange Rate	322
14.3	Exchange Rate Expectations and Macro Policy: a Guide to the Major Results	324
14.4	The Mundell–Fleming Results	325
14.5	The ‘Fiscalist’ Model: The Reversal of Mundell–Fleming	329
14.6	Bringing Back the Unique Equilibrium Rate of Unemployment: Exchange Rate Expectations	337
14.7	A Summary of the Floating Exchange Rate Models (Perfect Capital Mobility)	343
14.8	Unique Equilibrium Rate of Unemployment or Asymmetry?	344
15.	Further Open Economy Topics	346
15.1	Rational Exchange Rate Expectations: Dornbusch’s Overshooting Model	347
*15.2	Exchange Rate Expectations and Government Behaviour	351
15.3	The Impact of a Raw Materials Price Shock	355
15.4	Policy Interdependence and the World Equilibrium Rate of Unemployment	360
PART IV	MACROECONOMIC MODELS, STYLIZED FACTS, AND MICROECONOMIC FOUNDATIONS	369
16.	Macroeconomic Models and the Stylized Facts of Macro Performance	371
16.1	Six Stylized Facts of Macro Behaviour in Contemporary Industrialized Economies	372
16.2	The Imperfect Competition Model and the Stylized Facts	377
16.3	Conclusion	385
17.	Wage-Setting in Imperfectly Competitive Labour Markets	386
17.1	Microfoundations for the Bargained Real Wage Curve	387
17.2	Employer Wage-Setting: the Efficiency Wage Analogue to the Bargained Real Wage Curve	401
17.3	Wage-Bargaining Institutions and Equilibrium Unemployment Outcomes	408
18.	The Behaviour of Firms and Product Markets under Imperfect Competition	418
18.1	Microeconomic Arguments for a Flat Price-Determined Real Wage	420

18.2	Analysis with a Downward-Sloping Price-Determined Real Wage Curve	424
18.3	Oligopolistic Pricing, the Price-Determined Real Wage, and Open Economy Pricing Behaviour	426
18.4	Comparing Partial Equilibrium for the Firm with the General Equilibrium of the Firm sector	436
18.5	Conclusion	439
19.	The Shifting Equilibrium Rate of Unemployment: Hysteresis and Other Explanations	440
19.1	The General Idea of Hysteresis	444
19.2	The Insider–Outsider Model: Pure Hysteresis	448
19.3	The Long-Term Unemployed and Shifting Medium-Run Equilibrium Rates of Unemployment	452
19.4	Hysteresis and Capital Scrapping	456
