Contents

Acknowledgements vii
Preface ix

1 Preliminary issues 1
   Background 2
   What is an electronic resource? 4
   Why buy an electronic resource? 6
   Electronic collection development and traditional collection development 7
   Chapter summary 15

2 What is on offer? The electronic resources landscape 17
   Introduction 17
   Issues 19
   The landscape 39
   Conclusion 46
   Chapter summary 46

3 E-books and e-journals 48
   Introduction 48
   What is an e-book? 50
   How do you use an e-book? 51
   What is an e-journal? 57
   How do you use e-journals? 59
   Linkage services 61
   Buying e-books and e-journals 64
   Chapter summary 71
4 What to buy? Assessing and acquiring the electronic resource 73

Introduction 73
The life cycle of digital collection development 73
General comments 75
Formulating a collection development policy 75
Establishing a budget 77
Awareness of the electronic resource 83
Assessment, trials and evaluation 84
Evaluation checklist 88
The licence 93
Establishing a knowledge base 108
Ordering the electronic resource 108
Overall management and administrative responsibilities 109
Chapter summary 110

5 Delivering the electronic resource 112

Introduction 112
Cataloguing and delivering the electronic resource 112
Archiving the resource 126
Advertising the resource 127
Activities post-purchasing 127
The stakeholders 134
The user's perspective 136
Electronic collection development by numbers 142
Chapter summary 145

Select glossary 146

Select bibliography 152

Journals, e-mail lists and bulletin boards 152
Articles, associations, monographs and reports 155

Index 165